Morris B. Abram, former president of the American Jewish Committee and Brandeis University, was named yesterday as the first Jewish chairman of the United Negro College Fund which raises money for 36 predominantly black colleges and universities. The schools have a total enrollment of 40,000 students and 2,500 full-time faculty members. As president, Mr. Abram will oversee an effort to raise $10 million this year, compared with 1969 results of $6,875,000. The fund tries to cover at least 10 percent of the operating costs of the 36 member colleges.

The close relationship between the Koch brothers, the United Negro College Fund, and UNCF's handsomely compensated CEO shows how a once important creator of African American intellectual and economic growth has fallen for, as the old heads would say, the old okie-doke.

In June, UNCF accepted $25 million from the Koch brothers.

ILLUMINATI'S/SECRET SOCIETIES' COUNTER PLAN BASED UPON INFORMATION PROVIDED IN SUCH INTERVIEWS:

UPON REALIZING THE "TRUTH" IN WHAT MALCOLM X STATED, THE WHITE JEWS/ZIONISTS/SUPREMACISTS WENT TO WORK TAKING CONTROL OF SUCH ALLEGED BLACK ORGANIZATIONS and PLANTING HOUSE NIGGEROES IN THE NAACP, UNCF. . . TO REPORT BACK TO THEM FOR PURPOSES OF GAINING CONTROL OF BLACK/AFRICAN-AMERICAN MINDS, LIVELIHOOD. . . AND DESTROYING THE BLACK/AFRICAN-AMERICAN COMMUNITIES, BUSINESSES and SCHOOLS. . . For instance, HOW MANY OF THE 99.98% BLACKS/AFRICAN-AMERICANS ARE AWARE THAT CIVIL RIGHTS LEADER MEDGAR EVERS WIFE - MYRLIE EVERS - HAS SOLD OUT TO THE WHITE JEWS/ZIONISTS/SUPREMACISTS and THEIR LAW FIRM OF BAKER DONELSON BEARMAN CALDWELL & BERKOWITZ?

Recently, the Mississippi Museum of Art unveiled portraits of civil-rights icons Medgar Evers and his wife, Mrs. Myrlie Evers, by the renowned Mississippi artist, Jason Bouldin. Medgar Evers was the first field secretary for the NAACP in Mississippi. His assassination on June 12, 1963, galvanized the civil rights struggle in Mississippi and was a turning point in the national civil rights movement. Mrs. Evers spent 30 years working to convict her husband's killer, served as national chair and president of the NAACP, gave the invocation at President Obama's second inauguration, and is a nationally-recognized civil rights hero.

The Medgar Evers Institute is an Oregon nonprofit corporation organized many years ago by Mrs. Evers to promote racial reconciliation through civic engagement and education. The Firm's pro bono efforts allowed Mrs. Evers to reorganize the Institute to plan and coordinate events to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the assassination of Medgar Evers in June 2013.

With encouragement from Lisa Borden, the Firm's Pro Bono Shareholder, a Baker Donelson team went to work.

- Len Martin and Tanya Wasser, shareholder and legal assistant respectively in the Jackson office, prepared and filed documents to relocate to Mississippi and change the name of the Institute to the Medgar and Myrlie Evers Institute; drafted new bylaws and other organizational documents; and assisted in registering the Institute as a charitable organization in 16 states and D.C.
- Carl Davis and Pat Clotfelter in the Firm's Atlanta and Birmingham offices, respectively, provided intellectual property advice including the trademark registration of a logo for the Institute to use for 50th anniversary commemorative events.
- Alan worked with Mrs. Evers to recruit a new, Mississippi-based Board of Directors and develop an action plan for 50th commemorative events held in Washington, D.C., and Jackson in June 2013. He drafted employment and consulting contracts; advised on event management, insurance, fundraising, conflicts of interest and nonprofit requirements; and drafted a proclamation honoring Medgar Evers, which was unanimously adopted by the Mississippi Legislature.
- Alan also advised the Institute and Mrs. Evers in connection with an agreement with the Mississippi Department of Archives and History for the preservation of personal papers, artifacts and memorabilia of Medgar and Myrlie Evers.

COMMUNITY ACTIVIST VOGEL DENISE NEWSOME IS NOT HERE TO ENTERTAIN THE FOOLISHNESS OF THE LIKES OF SUCH GROUPS AS THE ILLUMINATI and/or THESE SECRET SOCIETIES

After more than 60 years as an attorney and public servant, Howard H. Baker Jr. is remembered as a leader and a bridge-builder. Known as "The Great Conciliator," he left an indelible mark during a distinguished career that included service as a senator, presidential advisor and ambassador.

He began his law practice in 1949, working at the law firm founded in Huntsville, Tennessee, in 1888 by his grandfather James Baker. He practiced law for 15 years before turning to politics.

His public service career began in 1966, when he became the first Republican popularly elected to the U.S. Senate from Tennessee. During his 18 years in the Senate, Senator Baker became known as "The Great Conciliator" for his ability to broker compromises across party lines. He gained national recognition in 1973 as vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee. Three years later, he was keynote speaker at the Republican National Convention, and was a 1980 candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. He concluded his Senate career in 1985 after two terms as majority leader (1981 to 1985) and two terms as minority leader (1977 to 1981).

A delegate to the United Nations in 1976, Senator Baker had extensive foreign policy experience. He served on the President's Foreign Intelligence Board from 1985 to 1987 and from 1988 to 1990, and was a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Washington Institute of Foreign Affairs. He served on the board of the Forum of International Policy and was an International Counselor for the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

History

Founding

Sensing a profound discord among North American, European nations and Japan, the Trilateral Commission was founded to foster substantive political and economic dialogue across the world. To quote its founding declaration:

- "Growing interdependence is a fact of life of the contemporary world. It transcends and influences national systems... While it is important to develop greater cooperation among all the countries of the world, Japan, Western Europe, and North America, in view of their great weight in the world economy and their massive relations with one another, bear a special responsibility for developing effective cooperation, both in their own interests and in those of the rest of the world."
- "To be effective in meeting common problems, Japan, Western Europe, and North America will have to consult and cooperate more closely, on the basis of equality, to develop and carry out coordinated policies on matters affecting their common interests... refrain from unilateral actions incompatible with their interdependence and from actions detrimental to other regions... [and] take advantage of existing international and regional organizations and further enhance their role."
- "The Commission hopes to play a creative role as a channel of free exchange of opinions with other countries and regions. Further progress of the developing countries and greater improvement of East-West relations will be a major concern."^[2]

Zbigniew Brzezinski, National Security Advisor to President Jimmy Carter from 1977 to 1981, professor at Columbia University, and a Rockefeller advisor who was a specialist on international affairs, left his post to organize the group along with:^[3]

- Henry D. Owen, foreign policy studies director at the Brookings Institution
- George S. Franklin, executive director of the Council on Foreign Relations in New York^[4]
- Robert R. Bowie, the Foreign Policy Association and director of the Harvard Center for International Affairs
- Gerard C. Smith, SALT I negotiator and its first North American chairman
- Marshall Hornblower, former partner at Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering
- William Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania
- Edwin Reischauer, professor at Harvard University and United States Ambassador to Japan, 1961–1966
- Max Kohnstamm, European Policy Centre
- Tadashi Yamamoto, Japan Center for International Exchange^[5]

Other founding members included Alan Greenspan and Paul Volcker; both later heads of the Federal Reserve System.

Meetings

The Trilateral Commission initiated its biannual meetings schedule in October 1973 in Tokyo. In May 1976, the first plenary meeting of all of the Commission's regional groups took place in Kyoto. It was through these early meetings that the group effected its most profound influence, the integration of Japan into the global political conversation. Before these exchanges, the country was much more isolated on the international stage.^[2] Since its founding, the discussion group has produced an official journal called Dialogue.

Membership

Membership is divided into numbers proportionate to each of the think tank's three regional areas. The North American continent is represented by 120 members (20 Canadian, 13 Mexican and 87 U.S. citizens). The European group has reached its limit of 170 members from almost every country on the continent; the ceilings for individual countries are 20 for Germany, 18 for France, Italy and the United Kingdom, 12 for Spain and 1–6 for the rest. At first, Asia and Oceania were represented only by Japan. However, in 2000 the Japanese group of 85 members expanded itself, becoming the Pacific Asia group, composed of 117 members: 75 Japanese, 11 South Koreans, 7 Australian and New Zealand citizens, and 15 members from the ASEAN nations (Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand). The Pacific Asia group also included 9 members from China, Hong Kong and Taiwan. Currently, the Trilateral Commission claims "more than 100" Pacific Asian members.^[2]

While Trilateral Commission bylaws exclude persons holding public office from membership,^[6] the think tank draws its participants from political, business, and academic worlds. The group is chaired by three individuals, one from each of the regions represented. The current chairmen are former U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs Joseph S. Nye, Jr., former head of the European Central Bank Jean-Claude Trichet and Yasuchika Hasegawa.^[7]

Criticisms

From the right

On the right, a number of prominent thinkers and politicians have criticized the Trilateral Commission as encroaching on national sovereignty. In his book With No Apologies, Republican Senator Barry Goldwater lambasted the discussion group by suggesting it was "a skillful, coordinated effort to seize control and consolidate the four centers of power: political, monetary, intellectual, and ecclesiastical... [in] the creation of a worldwide economic power superior to the political governments of the nation-states involved."^[8] Right-wing groups such as the John Birch Society and right wing conspiracy theorists such as Alex Jones also support this idea.^{[9][10]}

Conservative pundit Charles Krauthammer sardonically alluded to the conspiracy theories when he was asked in 2012 who makes up the "Republican establishment", saying, "Karl Rove is the president. We meet every month on the full moon... [at] the Masonic Temple. We have the ritual: Karl brings the incense, I bring the live lamb and the long knife, and we began... with a pledge of allegiance to the Trilateral Commission."^[11]

Social critic and academic Noam Chomsky has described the Trilateral Commission's goals in less-than-glowing terms. He criticizes the commission as undemocratic in pointing to its publication The Crisis of Democracy, in which the authors describe the strong involvement of the US population in the political process during the seventies as an "excess of democracy".^[12]

Essentially liberal internationalists from Europe, Japan and the United States, the liberal wing of the intellectual elite. That's where Jimmy Carter's whole government came from. [...] [The Trilateral Commission] was concerned with trying to induce what they called "more moderation in democracy"—turn people back to passivity and obedience so they don't put so many constraints on state power and so on. In particular they were worried about young people. They were concerned about the institutions responsible for the indoctrination of the young (that's their phrase), meaning schools, universities, church and so on—they're not doing their job, [the young are] not being sufficiently indoctrinated. They're too free to pursue their own initiatives and concerns and you've got to control them better.^[13]

Other

While the Trilateral Commission is only one of many think tanks on the political left and right, conspiracy theorists believe the organization to be a central plotter of a world government or synarchy. As documented by journalist Jonathan Kay, Luke Rudkowski interrupted a lecture by former Trilateral Commission director Zbigniew Brzezinski in April 2007 and accused the organization and a few others of having orchestrated the attacks of September 11 to initiate a new world order.^[14]

Chapter 6 – Trilateral Commission

The Trilateral Commission

The Trilateral Commission was founded in 1973 by David Rockefeller and Zbigniew Brzezinski. It has headquarters in New York, Paris, and Tokyo. It is said to be funded by the tax-exempt giants like Ford, Lilly Endowment, Rockefeller Brothers Fund, the German Marshall Fund, and corporations such as Time, Bechtel, Exxon, General Motors, Wells-Fargo, etc. Its membership is composed of past and present presidents, ambassadors, secretaries of state, Wall Street investors, NATO and pentagon military personnel, international bankers, foundation executives, media owners, university presidents and professors, senators and congressmen, and wealthy industrialists and entrepreneurs.

“The Trilateral Commission was formally established in 1973 and consisted of leaders in business, banking, government, and mass media from North America, Western Europe, and Japan,” “With the blessing of the Bilderbergers and the CFR, the Trilateral Commission began organizing on July 23-24, 1973.”

Its existence is a proven fact as verified by mainstream news sources such as Time Magazine, the Wall Street Journal, U.S. News and World Report, and The Washington Post.

In this Book written by Professor Antony Sutton, and Patrick M. Wood “ America’s Secret Establishment”, Professor Antony Sutton wrote, “The organization is completely above ground. In fact,” he stated, “this author has openly debated with George Franklin, Jr., ... of the Trilateral Commission on the radio. “ Mr. Franklin did show a rather ill-concealed dislike of the assault on his pet global New World Order—and made the mistake of attempting to disguise this objective.”

“The Trilateral Commission was formed in 1973 by private citizens of Western Europe, Japan and North America to foster closer cooperation among these three regions on common problems. It seeks to improve public understanding of such problems, to support proposals for handling them jointly, and to nurture habits and practices of working together among these regions.” Sutton and Wood then explain that the rest of their book is devoted to telling the truth about the commission.

Referring to the Task Force Report entitled, The Crisis of Democracy written in part by Harvard political scientist Samuel P. Huntington, author Marrs noted, “The paper suggested that leaders with ‘expertise, seniority, experience and special talents’ were needed to ‘override the claims of democracy.” He added, “Three years after his paper was published, Huntington was named coordinator of the 1979 presidential order creating the” Federal Emergency Management Agency” [FEMA], a civilian organization with the power to take totalitarian control of government functions in the event of a national ‘emergency.’”

Trilateral Commission has infiltrated the executive branch of the United States government. Regarding the beginning of this pattern of infiltration into the White House, Sutton and Wood commented, “On 7 January 1977 Time magazine, whose editor-in-chief, Hedley Donovan, is a powerful Trilateral Commissioner, named President Carter ‘Man of the year.’” They added, “Carter had already chosen his cabinet.

Three of his cabinet members—Vance, Blumenthal, and Brown—were Trilateral Commissioners... In addition, Carter had appointed another fourteen Trilateral Commissioners to top government posts. ... These presidential appointees represented almost one-third of the Trilateral Commission members from the United States.

Try to give odds to that!”

The January 16, 1977 issue of The Washington Post expressed, “Trilateralists are not three-sided people.

They are members of a private, though not secret, international organization put together by the wealthy banker, David Rockefeller, to stimulate the establishment dialog between Western Europe, Japan and the United States.

But here is the unsettling thing about the Trilateral Commission. The President-elect [Carter] is a member. So is the Vice-President-elect Walter F. Mondale. So are the new Secretaries of State, Defense and Treasury. So is Zbigniew Brzezinski, who is a former Trilateral Director and Carter's National Security Adviser, also a bunch of others who will make foreign policy for America in the next four years."

The same issue of The Washington Post reported that, "At last count, 13 Trilateralists had gone into top positions in the administration, not to mention six other Trilateralists who are established as policy advisers, some of whom may also get jobs. This is extraordinary when you consider that the Trilateral Commission only has about 65 American members."

"The new President [Carter] appointed more than seventy men from the CFR, and over twenty members of the much smaller Trilateral Commission. Zbigniew Brzezinski acknowledges in his White House Memoirs: "Moreover, all the key foreign policy decision makers of the Carter Administration had previously served in the Trilateral Commission..." "Brzezinski," stated Perloff, "of course, became National Security Adviser, the same position Kissinger had held."

Commenting on a June 18, 1974 article in the New York Times, which stated, "the lives and fortunes of large numbers of human beings hang upon the outcome of decisions taken by a small handful of national leaders-on the Trilateral Commission," Gary Allen warned that "it was time to pay more attention—a lot more attention—to the group."

Regarding the consolidation process of the New World Order, Sutton and Wood commented, "In September 1974 Brzezinski was asked in an interview by the Brazilian newspaper Vega, 'How would you define this new world order?'" Brzezinski answered, "We need to change the international system for a global system in which new, active and creative forces—recently developed—should be integrated.

This system needs to include Japan, Brazil, the oil producing countries, and even the USSR..." When asked if Congress would have an expanded or diminished role in the new system, Brzezinski declared, "The reality of our times is that a modern society such as the U.S. needs a central coordinating and renovating organ which cannot be made up of six hundred people."

This man is telling you that this New World Order will be a consolidation of individual countries into a single world government, which will be controlled by a small clique of insiders, who believe they are fit to rule the planet. Anytime you have a consolidation of the power such as this, you have a dictatorship!

Quoting from Brzezinski's book, Between Two Ages, Sutton and Wood wrote that Brzezinski described Marxism as, "a further vital and creative stage in the maturing of man's universal vision. ... Tension is unavoidable as man strives to assimilate the new into the framework of the old.

But at some point the old framework becomes overloaded." Brzezinski continued, "The new input can no longer be redefined into traditional forms, and eventually it asserts itself with compelling force. Today, though the old framework of international politics—with ... the fiction of sovereignty ... is clearly no longer compatible with reality."

According to Sutton and Wood, when Brzezinski uses the word "framework" he apparently means the U.S. Constitution; if this is so, then what he told us in 1971 is that the Trilateral Commission plans to make drastic changes to the U.S. Constitution.

"One of the most important 'frameworks' in the world ... is the United States Constitution," exclaimed Sutton and Wood. So why is it so important to these elite organizations that the Constitution be changed?

Well, they've admitted in their own publications that they tend to merge the U.S. and other NATO countries into a single world government controlled by the big corporations.

Would a constitution which guarantees individual freedom interfere with their plan?

Before the amendments made by the U.S. Patriot Act, and other anti-terror legislation, the constitution made it impossible for a totalitarian regime to flourish in the United States.

Sutton and Wood wrote that the Trilaterals wanted to assemble, "a national constitutional convention to re-examine the nation's formal institutional framework," in order to open up "a national dialog on the relevance of existing arrangements... The needed change," said the Trilaterals "is more likely to develop incrementally and less overtly." Brzezinski himself declared, "International banks and multinational corporations are acting and planning in terms that are far in advance of the political concepts of the nation-state."

Changing "existing arrangements" can be safely translated to existing freedoms, such the Bill of Rights. And "less overtly" means they'll be making these changes without your approval using deception. Sutton and Wood commented, "When Brzezinski refers to "develop(ing) incrementally and less overtly" he is specifically recommending a deceptive ... approach to abandonment of the Constitution." After the current "framework" is removed, it will apparently be replaced with a world constitution furnished by the UN, which doesn't guarantee personal freedom as a human right, but makes it a privilege, which is granted if possible.

When multinational corporations and banks run the planet, this is basically global fascism. Whether it's called fascism, or communism, or socialism, it's all the same, which is control by those in charge of the state, or super-state, in the case of the New World Order.

Again Sutton and Wood warn, "Those ideals which led to the heinous abuses of Hitler, Lenin, Stalin, and Mussolini are now being accepted as necessary inevitabilities by our elected and appointed leaders."

"Fascism should more appropriately be called corporatism because it is a merger of state and corporate power." -Benito Mussolini

*In his bestselling book, With No Apologies, Senator Barry Goldwater described the true intentions of the Trilateral Commission as, "a skillful, coordinated effort to seize control and consolidate the four centers of power-political, monetary, intellectual, and ecclesiastical [religious]." He added, "All this is to be done in the interest of creating a more peaceful, more productive world." In other words by using a big lie.*

*The Task Force report put out by the TC entitled, The Crisis of Democracy stated, "The democratic political system no longer has any purpose. The concepts of equality and individualism give problems to authority. The media is not sufficiently subservient to the elite. Democracy has to be "balanced" (i.e., restricted). The authority and power of the central government must be increased."*

These people are telling you that they're going to restrict your individual rights and centralize power into corporate hands. There can be no confusion over the objectives of this group that has infiltrated the executive branch since the 1970s.

They are telling you in their own publications exactly what they intend to do. They are setting up a worldwide fascist dictatorship!

"Trilateralism is the current operational vehicle for a corporate socialist takeover," advised Sutton and Wood. Likewise, Senator Goldwater calls the Trilateral Commission an "international cabal," which "is intended to be the vehicle for multinational consolidation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the United States." This covert takeover has been done, not by a civil war but by infiltration.

On July 23, 1976, the Greek newspaper Exormisis recognized this overthrow when they wrote, "A new kind of fascism emerges with Carter. The oppression will not have the form we used to know, but it will be the 'depoliticization' of all citizens in the U.S., and the generating of all power in the executive branch, that is, the Presidency, without the President giving any account to the Congress or anybody else except the multinationals [Banks/Corporations], which have financed Carter's campaign... The accession to power of Carter ... would mean a new era of dictatorial policies."

"Like sheep going to slaughter, our people cannot smell the death that awaits them," warned Sutton and Wood.

"If we are about to be thrown into the pits of the dark ages, the most logical catalyst, or motivator on the horizon is the TRILATERAL COMMISSION."

<http://www.thehiddenevil.com/tc.asp> (<http://www.thehiddenevil.com/tc.asp>)

Those commissioners who Carter brought into his administration (the initial "steering committee", if you will) were Walter Mondale (Vice President), Zbigniew Brzezinski (National Security Advisor), Cyrus Vance (Secretary of State), Harold Brown (Secretary of Defense) and W. Michael Blumenthal (Secretary of the Treasury,) among others. As the Washington Post phrased it: "Trilateralists are not three-sided people. They are members of a private, though not secret, international organization put together by the wealthy banker, David Rockefeller, to stimulate the establishment dialogue between Western Europe, Japan and the United States. "But here is the unsettling thing about the Trilateral Commission.

*The President-elect is a member. So is Vice-President-elect Walter F. Mondale. So are the new Secretaries of State, Defense and Treasury, Cyrus R. Vance, Harold Brown and W. Michael Blumenthal. So is Zbigniew Brzezinski, who is a former Trilateral director, and, Carter's national security advisor, also a bunch of others who will make foreign policy for America in the next four years."*³

Before Carter's term was completed, no less than 18 members (thirty percent of the U.S. Commission membership) of the Trilateral Commission served in his administration. Coincidence? Hardly!

This article purposely leaves out discussion of the non-U.S. membership of the Commission membership, which will be saved for another day. Suffice it to say that the European and Japanese contingents were just as powerful and effective in their respective home countries.

*Approximately one-third of the membership came from Europe and the other third from Japan. The joint membership met annually (no press allowed) to formulate policy and action plans for their respective regions. Many, if not most, of their policies were published in the Commission's quarterly journal, Dialogue.*

The most damning argument ever launched against the Trilateral Commission is the unconstitutional influence of other governments and forces upon the U.S. For instance, Commission members are not elected nor representative of the general population of the U.S., yet they effectively dominated the Executive Branch of the U.S. government.

When the Commission resolved policies (behind closed-doors) with non-U.S. members, who were a mere one-third minority, could it be said that foreign influences effectively controlled U.S. policy?

These concerns were never addressed by Congress or the Judiciary. The Executive branch would have nothing to address because it has been continuously dominated by Commission members — who repeatedly assured us that there was no such conflict of interest.

Of course, the answer to these questions are self-evident: U.S. interests, economic and political, have been subverted.

Current Trilateral Membership

The following list of north American members is not exhaustive. These are selected because of their high visibility in positions within Corporate, Political or Economic and Press. The purpose here is to show that the Trilateral Commission has grown, rather than declined, in strength over the years.

Keep in mind that there is no enrollment or application process to belong to the Trilateral Commission. One is invited to join in a manner similar to a college student being "tapped" for membership in a fraternity. Thus, the process is highly selective and discrete.

Candidates are thoroughly screened before invitation is delivered. For this reason, one can be relatively sure that anyone who is or who has ever been a member of the Commission is in the core of the global elite.

There are likely a few members who are not truly a part of the core, but for the sake of aggregate analysis, this is not an important issue.

Rockefeller and Brzezinski's strategy was nefarious, yet brilliant.

The election of democrat James Earl "I will never lie to you" Carter was assured by delivering the mostly democratic labor vote. This was accomplished by adding to the inner core: Leonard Woodcock (UAW), I.W. Abel (United Steelworkers) and Lane Kirkland (AFL-CIO).

By 1977, three more labor leaders were added to the membership: Glenn E. Watts (Communications Workers of America), Martin J. Ward (president of United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices), and Sol Chaikin, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Leonard Woodcock served as Chief Envoy to China under Carter, and was largely responsible for solidifying economic and political ties with Communist China. [Editor's note: Any reader who is or was a member of one of these unions will instantly have flashes of insight as to the enduring duplicity of labor management — you were effectively "sold down the river" starting 1973 and continuing into the present.]

Those commissioners who Carter brought into his administration (the initial "steering committee", if you will) were Walter Mondale (Vice President), Zbigniew Brzezinski (National Security Advisor), Cyrus Vance (Secretary of State), Harold Brown (Secretary of Defense) and W. Michael Blumenthal (Secretary of the Treasury,) among others.

*The economic subversion of the U.S. was studied in The August Review's America Plundered by the Global Elite and was likened to the plundering of a nation, the likes of which have not been seen in modern history.*

Current Trilateral Membership

The following list of north American members is not exhaustive. These are selected because of their high visibility in positions within Corporate, Political or Economic and Press.

The More Things Change, the More They Remain the Same

The occupational makeup of the Trilateral Commission has obviously changed over time, but that only represents the maturing of the globalization process. What was needed in 1973 is not what is needed today. Still, there are some consistencies that are easily observed. The most obvious consistency (and expansion) is the very large representation by the banking cartel: two chairmen and two board members of the Federal Reserve System, two presidents of the World Bank, director of the International Monetary Fund, and chairmen/CEO's of several prominent global banks.

This does not take into account any linkages from Commission members who are also directors of commercial and investment banks. Financial representation is not incidental because money is the life-blood of globalism.

Through membership, the Trilateral Commission dominates the executive branch of the U.S. government, the Federal Reserve System, and is closely aligned with the Bank for International Settlements, which controls the world's currencies and money supply. This is seen even without analyzing the remaining two-thirds of Commission membership that resides outside of the U.S.

The Institute for International Economics (IIE)

The IIE is an example of a key organization in which one might identify other core members of the global elite. Founded in 1981, IIE is a small policy-wonk organization with only 60 employees and an annual budget of $7 million.

According to its own web site, "The Institute for International Economics is a private, nonprofit, nonpartisan research institution devoted to the study of international economic policy. Since 1981 the Institute has provided timely, objective analysis and concrete solutions to key international economic problems.

"The Institute attempts to anticipate emerging issues and to be ready with practical ideas to inform and shape public debate. Its audience includes government officials and legislators, business and labor leaders, management and staff at international organizations, university-based scholars and their students, other research institutions and nongovernmental organizations, the media, and the public at large.

It addresses these groups both in the United States and around the world."

This would be easily overlooked unless you examine IIE's board of directors. Trilateralist Peter G. Peterson is chairman of the board. Anthony M. Solomon is honorary chairman of the executive committee. Solomon is the former chairman of Warburg (USA) Inc., former president and CEO of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and former Under Secretary of the Treasury for Monetary Affairs. Solomon was listed only as "Consultant" on the 1973 Commission membership list.

There are 12 other Trilateral Commission members (including David Rockefeller) on IIE's board of directors! Having established Trilateral influence (if not total domination), consider the following non-Commission IIE board members who might well be candidates for inclusion in the core of the global elite:

Chen Yuan – Governor, China Development Bank; former Deputy Governor, Peoples Bank of China.

Jacob A. Frenkel – Former governor of the Bank of Israel and former IMF economic counselor and director of research.

Maurice R. Greenberg – Chairman, American International Group.

David O'Reilly – Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, ChevronTexaco Corporation.

James W. Owens – Chairman and CEO of Caterpillar.

Lawrence H. Summers – President, Harvard University; former Secretary of the Treasury.

These are just a few of the non-Trilateral board members, and are reviewed only to show the process by which one might identify additional global elite core members.

There are other organizations like IIE that could stand similar analysis of purpose, leadership and directorship.

Conclusion

As was declared in the beginning of this analysis, the stampede to globalism is conducted by a small group of individuals with aspirations for global dominance. It should be noted again that there are members of the global "core" who are not members of the Trilateral Commission.

In general, they are driven by lust for money and power. They have clearly made an end-run around the American people in order to achieve personal goals that, in many cases, are diametrically opposed to U.S. interests.

If the American people fully understood the magnitude of the deception and power-grab, they would immediately and totally repudiate these individuals and their self-serving global schemes.

In 1971, Zbigniew Brzezinski wrote in Between Two Ages: The Technetronic Era, "...the nation-state as a fundamental unit of man's organized life has ceased to be the principal creative force: International banks and multinational corporations are acting and planning in terms that are far in advance of the political concepts of the nation-state."

Brzezinski could not have been more clear than this.

Of the few people who paid attention to Brzezinski previously, only one person needed to receive his message fully: David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank and consummate globalist. When they teamed up to start the Trilateral Commission in 1973, the rest, as we say, "became history."

So, how can one determine if an individual is a member of the core of the global elite? There is a good chance that such a person will be:

Â closely aligned with and accepted by many of the people already identified as core;

Â often family-related to other core members (i.e., the Bush family, Rockefeller family, etc.);

Â part of the "revolving-door" that switches them in and out of important and critical positions in government, academia and business;

Â a member (director or high-level executive) of an organization identified as a core company, such as J.P. Morgan Chase, Citigroup, Caterpillar Tractor, etc.;

Â educated at a prestigious and global-minded university;

Â belong to one or more organizations that are dominated by people already identified as core.

This list is not comprehensive, nor is it meant to be some simplistic litmus test. It is important to realize that many names being bandied about are NOT part of the core of the global elite, but rather become decoys that shift the focus away from the real elite core. Discretion, common sense and study is required to understand the difference between the two.

[Comment]

Thou its is not clear if all members listed and those that are not , are fully under the influence fully of the controllers of "CFR" or the "Elites", however these people do definately help in shape and determine policy in achieving the goals and direct into the "Global Agenda ".

"The Trilateral Commission is international and is intended to be the vehicle for multinational consolidation of the commercial and banking interests by seizing control of the political government of the U.S."

– Sen. Barry Goldwater

The Trilateral Commission is another tool used by the leaders of the CFR shadow government.

The world's elite utilizes secretive organizations such as the Committee of 300 structure, the CFR, the Bilderberg Society, and the Trilateral Commission to further its ultimate goal of global domination.

Although all these groups play a part in the movement toward a One World Government, the facts on the Trilateral Commission all lead us more specifically to the Council on Foreign Relations.

“The concept of the Trilateral Commission was originally brought to (David) Rockefeller by Zbigniew Brzezinski, then head of the Russian Studies Department at Columbia University. While at the Brookings Institution, Brzezinski had been researching the need for closer cooperation between the trilateral nations of Europe, North America, and Asia. -Rule by Secrecy

With the blessing of the Bilderbergers and the CFR, the Trilateral Commission began organizing on July 23-24, 1972, at the 3,500-acre Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills New York–Rule by Secrecy.

“Many of the original members of the Trilateral Commission are now in positions of power where they are able to implement policy recommendations of the Commission; recommendations that they, themselves, prepared on behalf of the Commission. It is for this reason that the Commission has acquired a reputation for being the Shadow Government of the West.”

– Journalist and Trilateral Commission researcher Robert Eringer

“We’re all about exposing the frauds that an investigation of the facts on the Trilateral Commission bring up, like the fact that the same founders who formed the CFR (which formed the Commission), formed the Federal Reserve.”

“You need to understand that the elite funds its plans through illegal taxation and fraudulent debt creation. By blindly buying into federal taxes and a mountain of debt, Americans are unwittingly funding the elite and their totalitarian plans. It doesn’t have to be this way. If the people are educated on the fraud, the fraud falls apart. “

The facts on the Trilateral Commission show us that its most influential members (who also are on the CFR Membership List) are extremely active in forming U.S. Government policy.
